A Private World of African Luxury

A PRIVATE GUIDE

The Gulf Family's Guide to South Africa

Where to go, when to travel, and how a family that travels well should see it.

CRAFTED FOR THE GULF · 2026

WHY SOUTH AFRICA, NOW

Closer than it feels.

For a Gulf family, South Africa is one of the rare long-haul destinations that asks almost nothing of you on arrival. It sits in near-perfect step with home — only one to two hours' time difference — so children land ready, not jet-lagged.

Direct and one-stop flights run from Dubai, Doha and Riyadh into Cape Town and Johannesburg. English is spoken everywhere. Private healthcare is world-class. And the value, at today's rates, is quietly exceptional for the standard of lodge and residence you step into.

It is, in short, a destination built for a family that wants the extraordinary without the friction.

The details that decide whether a trip works.

A safari is only as good as how well it holds your family. These are the things we arrange quietly, before you ask — because they are the difference between a holiday and a homecoming.

- ◆ Halal dining, arranged. Halal menus and preparation confirmed at every lodge in advance — not improvised on arrival.
- ◆ Prayer, respected. Direction and times noted; quiet, private space made available wherever you stay.
- ◆ Privacy as standard. Exclusive-use villas and private residences where your family is the only party — no shared vehicles, no strangers at dinner.
- ◆ Room for everyone. Family suites and connecting rooms; multigenerational groups kept together, comfortably.
- ◆ For the children. Family-friendly game drives, shorter where needed, with guides who are wonderful with young travellers.
- ◆ Arabic on request. A bilingual point of contact, and a person — never a form — who answers.

“Discretion, halal comfort and privacy are not extras we add — they are how we design, from the first line.”

WHEN TO TRAVEL

There is no wrong season — only the right one for you.

South Africa's two great experiences — the bush and the Cape — peak at opposite times of year. The art is matching the season to your family's dates and pace.

MAY – SEPTEMBER

Prime safari

Cool, dry winter days. Sparse bush and thirsty animals mean the finest big-game viewing of the year. Comfortable for children; excellent for photography. The Cape is green and quiet.

NOVEMBER – MARCH

Cape summer

Long, warm days on the coast — beaches, the winelands, the waterfront at their best. The bush is lush and dramatic, with newborn wildlife. Ideal for a beach-and-safari combination.

THE GULF SCHOOL BREAKS

Eid & summer

Both major holiday windows fall in excellent seasons. We hold lodges and residences early — the best exclusive-use space is finite and books far ahead.

A GENTLE NOTE

Malaria-free by choice

For families with young children, we favour malaria-free Big Five reserves — no tablets, no worry, the same extraordinary game.

THE CLASSIC SHAPE · ONE

Cape Town first.

Begin where the family finds its feet: a private residence in the leafy heart of Cape Town, minutes from Table Mountain, the V&A Waterfront and the beaches of the Atlantic seaboard.

Days are unhurried — a cable car at dawn, a boat on the harbour, the winelands an hour away, world-class dining that caters to every need. It is a soft, safe, endlessly beautiful landing before the wild.

Three to four nights is the family's rhythm here — long enough to settle, short enough to keep the anticipation of the bush ahead.

THE CLASSIC SHAPE · TWO

Then the wild.

From the Cape, an easy flight north to a private, malaria-free reserve — a lodge or exclusive-use residence held only for your family, with your own guide, vehicle and chef.

Mornings and late afternoons are spent tracking the Big Five; the long middle of the day is yours — a pool, a spa, a story on the deck as elephants pass below.

Three nights in the bush is the sweet spot: enough for the great sightings, gentle enough for children and grandparents alike.

One accountable pair of hands.

We are not a booking website. We are a small house that designs private African journeys for Gulf families — by hand, one at a time.

- ◆ Bespoke, never boxed. Every journey is drawn from a blank page around your family, your dates and your pace.
- ◆ The design phase. We begin with a paid design — a costed, considered proposal — credited in full to your journey when you confirm. Serious care for serious travellers.
- ◆ A person, always. One bilingual point of contact from first message to the moment you land home — never a call centre, never a bot.
- ◆ On the ground. Based in Dubai, rooted in South Africa's finest product — we hold the relationships that make the difference when it matters.

When you are ready, the next step is simply a conversation. Tell us who is travelling and when — we will do the rest.

Begin the conversation.

Share your family, your dates and what would make the journey unforgettable. A person will answer — thoughtfully, in English or Arabic.
